Yesterday was Jacky's birthday. My sister and I went to the toy shop. We wanted to buy a toy for Jacky as a present. My sister wanted to buy a doll. But I wanted to buy a toy robot. We both decided to buy a toy car in the end.

When we arrived at Jacky's home, Jacky's mum made some pudding and a roasted turkey with an oven.

In the living room, Jacky, I, my sister and Jacky's friends were playing hide-and-seek. Jacky was the seeker. But he was too clever that he knew where we were hid.

We sang the happy birthday song to Jacky. We ate the cake and gave Jacky the presents. It was very fun.
